SUMMARY

I am dedicated to sharing compassion with others, so that they can feel empowered and validated, and to share in the joy of their breakthroughs.

Hiring Management Team

To whom it may concern:

I am applying for your Teaching Assistant position because helping students learn and making classrooms run well is the kind of work that keeps me engaged. Moving to New York this year has given me the chance to look for a role that lets me do that again.

In Arizona, I spent my days in an elementary school technology lab. Four hundred K–5 students came through my room, learning how to work with computers by building small projects. After the bell, I stayed on to run a four-month after-school STEM program where kids built bridges, wrote bits of code, and argued cheerfully about whose design worked better. During the day, I also ran reading workshops for children who needed extra help. Outside of teaching, I was the backup every teacher counted on: fixing laptops, preparing materials, and covering classrooms so they could keep lessons moving.

That mix of teaching and support work taught me how to read a room, switch gears fast, and keep students busy in a way that helps them grow. I like being the person a class can lean on when things get busy.

Thank you for considering me. I would welcome the chance to bring that same energy and focus to your schools.

Respectfully,

Emalyn Lindeman
